Brian Scott-Quinn

Non-Executive Director

Brian Scott-Quinn is a CivilisedBank Non-Executive Director and chairs our Audit and Assurance Committee. He is also Professor (Emeritus) in Banking at the University of Reading ICMA Centre which he founded some years ago with financing for its buildings on campus gifted by the International Capital Market Association.

In addition, Brian is a board member of a fintech company and involved in project finance for infrastructure. Previously he worked in both wholesale commercial banking and investment banking. Working as a consultant, he advised the US Treasury and in 1978/79 was a monetary policy advisor to Margaret Thatcher's first Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lord Howe of Aberavon (Sir Geoffrey Howe).

Brian is the author of "Commercial and Investment Banking and the International Credit and Capital Markets" published by Macmillan as well as many others books and papers.
